

From: PCtech
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 12/8/01 1:11pm
Subject: Microsoft Antitrust

DOJ

If you look at Windows XP, it is obvious that Microsoft is making a fool out of the Justice Department! XP is an example of how big business can "out wait" any oversight and make money doing it!

Windows XP has no ability to run older programs (no DOS extensions) nor co-exist with LINUX or any other operating system. If you want to run any Windows program using XP, all other operating systems must go away.

I think the solution to the matter is to remove all software that is written by a company that is held in contempt from the Governments "buy" list. Any documents distributed electronically should not be distributed using that companies software. Documents should be distributed using RTF format or a GNU format. RTF format is universally accepted and does not rely on proprietary software to be read. The Federal Government is encouraging Microsoft to continue it's practices by encouraging others to purchase Microsoft software.

Thanks and God bless
Frank Nevis
11733 Castle Court
Dublin, CA 94568-2701332
nettech@pcmagic.net

CC: feedback@redhat.com@inetgw